2.1. Did this project achieve their goal

The project is considered one of the life-saving (emergency) food projects in times of disasters and wars. The primary impact is to alleviate the human suffering of families affected by the war in Yemen. The project helped to meet the food needs of 80% of the targeted families whose suffering increased with the current situation in the country for a period of two weeks. The targeted families were provided with breakfast meals for seven days.

3.0: Beneficiary statement

These projects were planned to cover the most needy groups in society. For clarity, the target groups can be described as follows:

1. IDPs: Due to the devastating war and the ongoing economic blockade, the targeted IDPs - like millions of Yemenis - have left their original place of residence and moved to other places where they find neither housing nor . . food nor even basic items for survival
2. The project targeted some families headed by widows to help them in their . struggle to feed their children
3. The project targeted a number of socially and economically marginalized . families who are already in dire need of basic foodstuffs
4. The majority of targeted families are among the poorest needy families with . children suffering from acute malnutrition

4.0 Lessons learned and recommendations :

The main important contribution to the intervention is that the project is .expected to make a leap in humanitarian action in Yemen during/post-conflict

- Its design and implementation have been highly appreciated by all stakeholders as it has proven to be more suitable for different beneficiaries' needs, more efficient and effective, and generates a wider impact.
- Involving the local community through community committees, which in turn participated in the different phases of the project, which contributed to better identifying the needs of the target communities. This allowed the need to come from the beneficiaries themselves, and provided a more welcoming environment for the target audience where they felt it was their choice, ultimately creating challenges and fewer possibilities for conflict within the broader community.

To achieve continuous process improvement of performance SORD we hope , you will take the following suggestions:

- current beneficiaries , building on previous support and adding activities to enhance savings, livelihoods and income generating activities to ensure better sustainability of the extended family's resilience.
- Funding projects to treat malnutrition.
- Supporting the residents of the ancient historical city of Sana'a affected by the bombing and/or torrential rains .
